Planning Advice

Even though exempt work does not require a building consent it often will require Planning input.

For all your question regarding Planning and the District Plan, Wanganui District Council has a dedicated duty planner who is available Monday to Friday at 101 Guyton Street or by telephone on 06 3490001 between the hours of 8.00am and 5.00pm.

Revised Schedule 1

The Building (Exempt Building Work) Order 2010 made changes to Schedule 1. These changes, which come into force on 23 December 2010, adds to Schedule 1 of the Building Act 2004 several classes of building work for which a building consent is not required. This order enables the following class of building work to be done without a building consent. An excerpt of Schedule 1 is shown below. The information that hasn't changed is shown in faint type the new information is in bold type. Information with a ~~strike through~~ are clauses that are now superseded. More changes will occur when Parliament sits next year (2011).

1. When is a building consent required

The reprint of Schedule 1 of the Building Act 2004 below lists what building work can be processed without the owner first obtaining a building consent. Don't guess whether building work requires a consent or not, check Schedule 1 to make sure, illegal building work is just not worth it. It may invalidate your insurance cover and put your family's safety at risk. Please note that all building work must comply with the Building Code. Information in [italics] is for clarification only. Please ensure that you seek technical advice from a qualified person.

Even if your building project does not need a building consent, there may be other approvals you do need. Please talk to a council officer about planning and other approvals.
